

ROCKET BELT

While the chariot makes travel across the land easy there may be times when speed is more important or the land is too rough even for the chariot. For this reason a rocket belt is provided. It contains two large fuel tanks and enough thrust to lift a man (and even a small passenger) a hundred feet in the air. It can travel only a short time but its ability to overcome obstacles puts that time to its best advantage.